“Youth, Gender, and Dignity in the Arab Uprisings” Dr. Diane Singerman

Dr. Singerman is Associate Professor in the Department of Government at American University. Her research interests focus on political change from below, particularly in the Middle East and more specifically in Egypt; her work examines the formal and informal side of politics, gender, social movements, globalization, public space, protest, and urban politics. Following Dr. Singerman's lecture, we will feature pre-selected afternoon research workshops below.

“Gender and the Middle East Uprisings”

12:00 – 1:00 PM: Lunch (Luce Hall, Common Room)

1:00 – 2:30 PM: JMEWS Distinguished Lecture (Luce Hall, Room 202)

2:30 PM – 4:20 PM: JMEWS Workshops (Luce Hall, Room 202)
